Davis Begins Drive On Home Brew Products

ATTORNEY GENERAL WILL INVESTIGATE 'MALT EXTRACTS'

Advertisement Begun of Products in State, Official Hears

CHEMISTS WILL STUDY EXTRACT

Sale Will Be Stopped If Unlawful, Is Promise

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 27.—Harwell G. Davis, attorney general of Alabama, today started an investigation to ascertain the use of various "malt extract" products, the advertisement and sale of which he says has begun in Alabama.

Mr. Davis stated that it has been reported that these malt products are being used principally as a subterfuge to evade the prohibition law in the manufacture of home brew.

"If these reports are found to be true, I will take action to enjoin the sale of such products in this state," declared the attorney general.

"I have started a collection of malt products and will have them analyzed by the state chemist. It is reported that these malt products have virtually no sale as food ingredients and the demand is with the intention to use for beverage purposes," Mr. Davis further declared.

Cities Advertised In Far-off Arizona

A request for copies of the booklet recently published by the Albany-Decatur Junior Chamber of Commerce advertising the Twin Cities, was made by Lamar Penney, of Penney-Whitman. Mr. Penney explained that he was in receipt of an inquiry about the Twin Cities from far-away Arizona and desired the booklet so that this request and others could be met with direct information.

Notices Sent To Tax Delinquents

Notices are being sent by the City of Albany to persons who are delinquent on payment for street and storm assessments. Officials were hopeful that their would be a ready response on the part of the citizenship.

AMERICAN PINCHED FOLLOWING FIGHT

Boston Man Is Accused Of Assault On Italian

(Associated Press)

ROME, April 27.—John Adams Abbott, aged 24, son of Mrs. Grafton St. Lo Abbott, of Boston, Mass., was arrested today on a charge of assaulting Salvatore Astrologo, a Roman guide, and insulting Premier Mussolini.

Abbott and Astrologo engaged in an argument after the guide is said to have usurped the American's place in a line of tourists awaiting entrance to the Vatican gardens. The quarrel was renewed in the halls of one of the Vatican buildings and again at Abbott's hotel, to which he invited the guide, in order to settle the affair.

The pair engaged in a fist fight in front of the hotel, the American landing with such effect that Astrologo was taken to the hospital. The guide accused Abbott of having uttered insulting remarks about Mussolini and fascism.

Is She America's Prettiest?

Miss Dorothy Hughes, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has probably been chosen "most beautiful" more often than any other girl in the United States. She won the Atlantic City title, "Miss America," twice, was two-times winner of the beauty championship of New York City, was selected by Joseph Cummings Chase, artist, as America's most lovely woman, and David Wark Griffith, movie director, says she is the typical American girl and the most perfect flapper.

PLANS DIFFER FOR FARMERS' RELIEF

House Receives Widely Divergent Views By Committee

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Widely different plans for solution of the surplus crop problems were submitted to the house today by members of its agricultural committee, which has been delving into the situation for several months, without reaching an agreement on any single measure.

The plan, which has the endorsement of Secretary Jardine, was reported by Representative Tinch, republican, Kansas. It would provide a special agency with a $1,000,000,000 loan fund to aid co-operative marketing associations in disposing of surplus crops and thus, Mr. Tinch said, would "bring about stabilized prices and the orderly flow of farm products into consumptive channels, through machinery set up, operated and managed by the farmers, themselves."

Representative Aswell, democrat, of Louisiana, presented the Curtis-Aswell commodity marketing bill, which calls for an appropriation of only $10,000,000 to establish national and subsidiary sectional marketing associations, owned, controlled and operated by farmers.

McAdoo Files A Second Libel Suit

(Associated Press)

TAMPA, Fla., April 27.—W. D. McAdoo, real estate operator, today filed a second libel suit against Frank F. Pulver, publisher of the St. Petersburg Daily News and Alfred Birdshall, an associate. Mr. McAdoo alleged he was libeled in a series of articles that appeared in the Daily News.

In a suit filed several days ago, Mr. McAdoo sought $100,000. His second charge alleged the News continued printing libelous articles.

Mr. Pulver is a former mayor of St. Petersburg.

PAN-AMERICAN TO HASTEN SCHEDULE

Nearly An Hour To Be Clipped From Time of Crack Train

With the inauguration of a new schedule by the Pan-American, crack passenger train of the Louisville and Nashville system, the running time between New Orleans and Cincinnati will be shortened 50 minutes. The new schedule, which will become effective on May 2, will bring the arrival of the Pan here at 7:57 instead of 7:32, southbound, and 9:30 instead of 9:42, northbound.

The new schedule will make better connections in Cincinnati for travelers going to New York and other eastern points. The Pan-American is one of the most completely equipped passenger trains in service in the South, offering as it does sleeper, club and observation cars, shower baths, women's lounge and radio.

Mother-in-law Beats Affectionate Friend

(Associated Press)

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., April 27.—Mrs. Frank Magganance, widow of a prominent manufacturer is under arrest here, charged with beating with a garden hose, another woman whom she asserted was too friendly with her daughters husband.

Miss Hilma Johnson, a soda fountain worker who received the beating, obtained the warrant which was served late yesterday.

The case is to be heard in municipal court. Miss Johnson charges she was accosted and beaten by Mrs. Magganance, whose son-in-law, Frank Hagman, a grocer, the mother-in-law, said has recently been "too attentive" to Miss Johnson.

It was the final step Mrs. Magganance said in an attempt to stop the girl from "paying attention" to Hagman. With her daughter she had decided on employing "forceful argument" after persuasion covering several months had failed.

ROAD SURVEY WILL ACQUAINT VOTERS WITH REAL ISSUE

Local Automobile Men Believe That Good Will Come

ROGERS BACKS QUERY IDEA

Final Reports Likely To Change Aspect In State Race

The principal value of the proposed survey by the Alabama Automotive Trades Association will lie in the final estimate given to the people of Alabama, is the opinion of Albany-Decatur and Morgan County automobile dealers who are thoroughly in accord with the plan as explained by Hayse Tucker, president of the motor association.

H. Ettinger Breed, considered one of the foremost consulting highway engineers in the country, will conduct a general survey of Alabama's road building program and future highway needs. A tax expert is likewise being employed to make a study of highway financing.

This suggested aid by the Automotive Association is welcomed by John A. Rogers, chairman of the Alabama Highway department, who stated in a letter to Mr. Tucker, "The more I think of your suggestion that an outstanding engineer of known ability come and inspect the highways built by the Alabama Highway department the more it impresses me as a good thing to do."

It is the opinion of local automobile men that the survey of Mr. Breed and the tax report will prove beneficial in the final analysis, the full report being given to the people through the newspapers of the state. Belief is expressed that the survey will determine the truth of accusations made by some newspapers that the highway department is far behind the road-building program with the funds that have been provided, furthermore that the Rogers "$75,000,000 bond issue" is unnecessary. It is thought that the expression from unbiased experts can be accepted as a foundation by voters who will determine the amount and means for approving a road bond issue.

The announcement that the experts will be brought to this state will likewise lend color to the present gubernatorial campaign which is being fought primarily upon the issues of roads and education. Hayse Tucker, head of the automobile association will explain the plan in full to the gathered Junior Commerce bodies at Mobile on April 28-29.

PAN-AMERICAN OIL COMPANY TO BUILD WHOLESALE PLANT

Big Concern To Erect Distribution Tanks In Twin Cities

RETAIL STATIONS ALSO PLANNED

Officials Impressed By Prospects Of The Valley Section

The Pan-American Oil company, one of the largest concerns of its kind in the world, has obtained acreage here and will erect immediately a five-tank distribution station on the property, it became known officially today.

In addition to the distributing plant, the Pan-American company will open within the immediate future three retail filling stations in Albany-Decatur.

The Pan-American company recently entered Alabama, the announced intention of the company being to invest $10,000,000 in this state in real estate alone. Of this amount $1,000,000 will be invested in the Birmingham district, which will be distributing center for the state.

The North Alabama distributing plant here will enable the company to distribute its product by trucks to Athens, Courtland, Moulton, Cullman, Hartselle and other cities of this section.

Messrs. Parkhurst, district manager, and McCarty, state manager, representing the Pan-American company were visitors here last week and were declared to be very much impressed with the entire Tennessee Valley, and with the advantages of Albany-Decatur as a distribution center for North Alabama.

The wholesale plant will be located near the Louisville and Nashville and Southern switch tracks, west of the compress where the plant will have adequate switching facilities.

Four Women Are Trampled By Rush To Get 'Bargains'

(Associated Press)

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 27.—Four women were trampled so severely in a bargain sale rush today that they required first aid treatment from ambulance surgeons. The store had advertised a "dollar sale" and more than 500 women milled about the entrance at opening time.

A riot call brought police reserves who ordered the management to open the doors before the large windows gave way. The four women were hurt as they thronged into the store.

TEN CONVICTS ARE INQUIRY WITNESSES

Lease System Is Back Into Political Limelight

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, April 27.—Ten negro convicts from Flat Top prison camp appeared before the Jefferson County grand jury which is inquiring into the case of James W. Knox, who died under mysterious circumstances at Flat Top in 1924. These prisoners for the most part are long termers who have been at the prison for several years. They are said to have knowledge of events connected with the Knox death.

The convicts one by one were closeted for several minutes with the inquisitorial body. Solicitor Jim Davis is in charge of the examination of witnesses while Attorney-General Harwell Davis is acting in an advisory capacity.

It is expected that the entire week will be consumed in the examination of witnesses.

The Knox case has been the storm center of an investigation which brought anew the Alabama Convict Leasing System into the limelight. Many a political battle has been waged about it heretofore and it is said the present state campaign will be featured by a fight to take convicts from the mines and to establish an entirely new penal code.

LUCK AIDS FIREMEN IN DOUBLE ALARM

Crew Is Split When 2 Calls Are Made To Albany Dept.

Lady Luck arrayed herself on the side of the Albany fire department late Monday afternoon, when two alarms came into the department almost simultaneously. Only slight damage was done by the flames.

At 5:45 o'clock, while Firemen Papenberg and Cobb were at their evening meal, an alarm came from the residence of Mrs. George Osborne, 214 Ninth street South. The truck answered the call promptly, but as Fireman Papenberg, who was eating at a nearby cafe, rushed to the city hall, he saw he had missed the truck. The phone was ringing and he answered, getting another call to 1212 Fourth avenue South, to the residence of Ben Campbell.

Fireman Papenberg immediately started the scout car of Chief Sorber and answered the second call. Fireman Cobb, who was eating at his home across the street from the Campbell residence, rushed to the scene at once and the two were able to extinguish the second blaze also with chemicals, which were carried in the scout car as well as in the truck.

THREE HOMICIDES IN WALKER COUNTY IN PAST EIGHT DAYS

Officials Are Stirred By Outbreaks In Two Counties

SPECIAL TERMS ARE INDICATED

Investigation Proceeds Of Raid By Band on Negro Home

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 27.—One grand jury has already been called to meet in special session, while the Solicitor of another circuit is believed to be on the point of reconvening an inquisitorial body in extraordinary session as the result of a crime wave that has swept over North Alabama during the past seven or eight days.

Three homicides have been reported in Walker County in eight days, while in Blount county a death followed a shooting scrape which grew out of a masked raid Sunday night. Dispatches from Jasper say that Solicitor B. G. Wilson has called the grand jury of Walker county to meet May 5 to probe the killings of Deputy Sheriff H. L. Taylor, Orville Moore, Carbon Hill student, and Giles Strickland, Ensley youth.

Circuit Solicitor M. C. Sibley, of Gadsden, today went to Oneonta to meet County Solicitor Darden and direct the investigation into the raid in which Lilly Cobb, negro, was shot fatally and Andrew Moses, one of the raiders was wounded.

Solicitor Darden said over long distance telephone that the investigation was progressing rapidly and that a decision probably would be reached Wednesday as to the necessity of calling the Etowah grand jury back into session.

Albert Burkett, former state convict, is being held for the killing of Sheriff Taylor which occurred at Townley Saturday night; Elmer Olive is held in Birmingham jail for the killing of Moore; while Arthur Russell held at Jasper will answer for the death of Strickland, who was shot at Union Grove church Sunday.

MAY DAY PROGRAM IN DECATUR SCHOOL

Miss Carolyn Fussell To Be Crowned Queen of May Next Week

An interesting May Day program will be rendered by the Decatur schools next week, the exact date of the event not yet having been fixed. The program probably will be given Thursday, it was stated by W. W. Benson, superintendent of the Decatur schools.

The day also will be "Visitors' Day" and a cordial invitation to the patrons of the school and the public generally was extended to be present.

The program will open with exhibits of the work of the grammar school students in the latter building from 8:30 to 10:30 o'clock. From 10:30 to noon work of the high school students will be shown in the new high school building.

At one o'clock a literary program will begin in the auditorium and at 2:00 o'clock will occur the coronation of Miss Carolyn Fussell as queen. Her maids of honor will be: Misses Frances Mason, Mary Brennaugh, Louie Moore Pointer and Elkins Himes.

During the afternoon the May-pole dances will be given by a cast of 24 high school students. A baseball game between Decatur high and the Athens Agricultural school, on the athletic field, will close the program.

"The Revealing Romance of a flapper adventures on life's highway"

Miss Nobody

by TIFFANY WELLS

Published by arrangement with First National Pictures Inc.

"Hardiman?" Barbara spoke the name with no tenderness. "I shall bring him to you," said the doctor decisively. "I shall bring him now. And when you see him you'll forget any reason you may have had for feeling toward him the slightest animosity. They say that one must speak kindly of the dead. I want you to speak kindly with the dead."

The thing that was presently wheeled through the door was not Hardiman. Barbara stiffened in her seat as she inspected the bundle of blankets and shrunken flesh which Dr. Melkeljohn propelled toward her in a wheel chair.

For a sickening second Barbara thought back over what might have been. She did not envy Nan then. The very voice, when it issued from among the blankets, was a mockery of the deep, resolute tone in which she remembered the moment well; he had once asked of her the thing which he very much wanted. Hardiman first addressed Melkeljohn, in a faint, querulous whine:

"Get out!"

Good-humoredly, Melkeljohn left. "You're not very nice to him, are you?" Barbara blurted.

"I don't have to be," wheezed Hardiman. "Why should I be nice to a man who has told me that I'm a dead man? They haven't buried me yet—but they will! Maybe tomorrow—maybe in a year. What's the difference? I haven't much time, young woman, in which to square many many accounts. Your coming here has saved some of this time."

"You're the only woman I ever knew that I couldn't buy."

"You owe me nothing," whispered Barbara. "I gave nothing."

"We won't argue about that, please," he said. "Never argue with a dead man. I've always wondered why you ran away. I never suspected an elopement."

"It wasn't," said Barbara bluntly.

"Married now?" Barbara shook her head.

"But Dr. Melkeljohn—" began J. B.

"I suppose he told you I'm to have a baby. I am. It's my own affair."

"Please don't think that I demand to know anything. I want to tell you something—not ask questions. I sent for you because there's a warm place apart in my quivering heart for you. You're the only woman I ever knew that I couldn't buy. If it wasn't another man perhaps you'll tell me truly why you ran away from me?"

"I didn't hate you," she protested. "If I, you were very kind I was the guilty one. I couldn't keep a contract. Couldn't make up my mind. Not that it matters."

She paused and then asked drily: "And isn't Nan back—anyway?"

"Yes," he was grim. "She's waiting. Right now she's doing her waiting in Palm Beach. To see how long I'll last. I'd like to disappoint her by living. But I won't."

He sagged and motioned Barbara to draw nearer. "I want her to regret my death."

Was his mind wandering? She waited, tense.

"I called up that boarding house often," resumed J. B., with recovered calm. "You ignored me. Did you think I plotted anything against you—or your child? I—I hope that child will be a boy, Barbara."

"Because I should like to leave to him the squaring of my accounts. My breath's short," he mumbled, apologetically. "I must be brief, Barbara. I have a child. It would be thirty now. It was born in Vienna. The mother was an opera singer. Were you older you might know of Fritz Kohler."

Barbara gripped the arms of her chair to steady herself.

"Why do you cry, Barbara?"

"Am I crying?" she brushed her eyes. "I thought I was laughing. I—perhaps it's because I'm sick. The name was Fritz Kohler? She was the great Carmen of her day."

"How do you know?" J. B. puzzled.

"I'm interested in Carmens," she babbled. "God, this is—I—listen, J. B.!"

She hummed the motif of La Habanera. He watched her with a strange gleam in his weary old eyes, and cupped his ears.

"Melkeljohn!" he called feebly. Again she had floated away from reality, she realized, as she was called back by J. B.'s cry.

"What's wrong?" she stammered. "Are you feeling worse?" "No. I want him for you. You were raving—singing." "It's all right." She dismissed the ugly sensations. "Your child—what do you know of him?" "Him?" he echoed. "I don't even know the child's sex."

"What difference does it make?" she shrugged.

"Yes, what difference? None. None the less, I hope yours is a boy, Barbara." He leaned eagerly.

"Barbara, I was going to make a settlement on you—the woman I couldn't buy. I've changed my mind. I'll make the settlement on your child, Barbara!" he shouted in his careerist's "I want to be godfather to your son."

"Godfather?" she echoed. "A sort of grandfather?"

"A sort of grandfather," said J. B. nodding contently. "Yes, a sort of grandfather."

Doing Very Nicely

HARDIMAN was a sick tiger in a wheel chair. Endlessly he prodded his wheel chair across the room, cutting from corner to corner. For an hour he had been cruising thus.

It was a month since Barbara had come to this house.

In contrast to Hardiman's restlessness, Dr. Melkeljohn sat in a big armchair, his body never stirring. But his hands clasped and unclasped.

They were not at ease, these two.

It was comical to see the way the sick man pushed his chair about. The doctor, watching him silently, wanted to smile. But he failed to compose his features to that end.

"Bah!" snarled Hardiman. "You make me sick!"

"You'll make yourself sick," said the nurse quietly. "You mustn't worry about her. She's doing very nicely."

"Who's worrying about her?" protested Hardiman stoutly. "I'm not worried—not a bit!"

He turned his wheel chair with one dexterous motion and looked petition up into the woman's face.

"How many die?" he quavered. "Tell me, nurse."

"Very few of the young and healthy ones," returned nurse levelly. "Miss Barbara's doing very nicely."

"I don't believe you," said Hardiman.

Out of the seamed and blighted face the dull eyes looked wistfully into space, ignoring the familiar decorations of the room for things seen spiritually afar—in the past or the future.

Over his head the nurse glanced significantly at the doctor and nodded toward the door. The man of medicine rose quickly and nodded. He placed his hand gently on Hardiman's shoulder.

"I'll see you after—"

Hardiman looked up keenly, searching for news in both of these calm, professional faces. Dr. Melkeljohn's face was expressionless.

It was as if his crony of a moment since had receded by some metaphysical trick, from his touch and understanding. There was the difference between priest in broadcloth and priest in eucharistic robes.

"Will she suffer a great deal?" he mumbled.

Following Dr. Melkeljohn toward the door to mysteries, nurse paused an instant.

"She's doing very nicely." It was almost a chant. She had said it so many times.

"He started his chair toward the other end of the room, toward the door behind which, in this sepulchral silence, went forward the war between life and death, with the body of a woman its trampled battleground. Directly opposite the door he stopped and started. It told him nothing. He turned his chair swiftly, so swiftly that a pain shot through the muscles of his wrists.

An automobile had honked in the street directly below the street window at the other end of the room. It honked not only once but, with an infernal malice, stopped before his door and set up a devil's chorus of brassy shrieks into the quiet of the street.

He wheeled to the window in a tury. His influence had obtained of a deferential local authority signs at the end of the block which read:

"Hospital street—Do not sound horns."

Hardiman raised his arm and struck insanely at the window glass, shattering it. He braced himself to look through the opening. The enraged cry on his lips was stopped.

Below him, with bags and hat-boxes in a semi-circle about her, stood a familiar slender figure.

"Too-hoo!" thrilled Nan tunelessly.

"Stop your howling!" he roared down at her.

Energy left him. He watched Nan pay off the taxi driver. He saw a footman run down the steps, gather up her luggage, and follow her into the house. He wheeled slowly to the center of the room.

He waited, but she didn't enter the room. Of course, she would be hearing from the servants about the woman in the next room. He could visualize the hard look that would enter her eyes when she learned. He could almost visualize the evil, little plotting brain behind her cold, blue eyes hatching some deviltry.

12 Years Ago From the Daily of TODAY April 27, 1914

An unusual circumstance occurred Sunday at the First Presbyterian church when four generations were represented at the baptismal service, including: William Wyker, Sr., of Youngstown, O., his son, John D. Wyker, John William Wyker, and the latter's son, John William.

Ransome Holland was painfully hurt when his right foot was caught in the driving chain on the motorcycle delivery wagon of the Home Steam laundry.

Robert Binford has returned to Athens, after spending the week-end with his brother, Henry Binford.

Mrs. Emma Sykes, of Courtland, is the guest of Mrs. Early Phinizy.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Thompson spent yesterday in Huntsville, the guests of friends.

The two Nashville newspapers have a candidate each for governor. The summer bids fair to be a warm one.

The Washington windstorms appear to do more damage to Alabama than is done by the windstorms which actually visit us.

The victory of Miss Louie Moore Pointer in the eighth district oratorical contest is very pleasing to her many friends here, who wish her success as she goes to Birmingham to represent the eighth district in the state-wide elimination contest.

The grand jury investigating the death of James Knox may or may not be able to determine the responsibility for his death. Abolition of the convict lease system, however, would go a long way toward preventing another such page of Alabama's record.

Nashville lands a textile mill, with a capital and surplus of $1,000,000. The company, reorganized, has been granted a Tennessee charter and work will be started immediately on construction of the necessary buildings. Of course, the plant was partly financed in Nashville. Albany-Decatur must be ready with their dollars, if they are to share in the upbuilding of the South.

The people who have spent many years wondering how to spell Muscle Shoals properly, have sympathy for Tuscaloosa in her effort to ascertain whether the word is spelled with a "k" or a "c." The Tuscaloosa News uses the "e" in the spelling on its name plate, yet in the same issue an advertisement appears spelling Tuscaloosa with a "k."

SAVE THE WILD FLOWERS, IS APPEAL BEING MADE BY MANY NEWSPAPERS

This is the time of the year when appeals are made in behalf of the wild flowers. This year is no exception, and column after column of editorial space is devoted to pleas for conservation of the budding flowers along the roadside, yet this year, as usual, the appeals seem to fall upon deaf ears.

Automobiles return to the cities here, there and everywhere, loaded frequently with people and with flowers, which the occupants have picked along the road. There is a strong temptation to gather armfuls of dogwood and other blossoms, but wouldn't it be far better if these were left to lend their beauty to the landscape? More often than not, the flowers are not used in any particular decoration of the home. In many cases they wither within a day or two.

Let us all make up our minds to stop the practice and in a few years the beauty highways of North Alabama in the spring and summer will more than repay us for having done so.

POWER COMPANIES WIN IMPORTANT VICTORY IN THE FIGHT OVER SHOALS DISPOSITION

Developments of Monday in Washington do not encourage the belief that all will be easy sailing for Shoals legislation at this session of congress. On the other hand the developments indicate a bitter battle in the senate and a fight of no mean proportions in the house.

Yet, the fact is undisputed that in gaining the approval of a majority of the Muscle Shoals commission, the Associated Power group won a most important victory. There can be no discounting of that.

Senator Heflin, who favored the American Cyanamid company's offer, may offer it to the senate as a substitute for the power bid and Representative James declined to approve the findings of the majority. These presage acrimonious debate on the floor of both branches of congress, with Senator Norris always willing to chip in with a few words more or less.

The approaching weeks will be trying ones for the people of the Twin Cities and the remainder of the Tennessee Valley. In the first place the majority of people here were not in favor of the power bid. They would have desired very much the acceptance of some other offer, yet at the present time the power company is on top of the heap, and we gain little by antagonizing those interests. If the government says that we must endure their operation of the Shoals, there is no escape, and for our own salvation we must find a common meeting ground on which we can get-together with them.

On the other hand, in Washington, a group will be waging a fight to present the acceptance of the commission's report. Most of the senators and the congressmen who will participate in that fight our friends of the Tennessee Valley and this section could do no less than follow their efforts with sympathetic interest.

The path for the Valley for the next few weeks will be unusually difficult, but The Daily hopes that nothing will be done to make a bad situation worse.

GENERAL SURVEY OF ALABAMA ROAD NEEDS WILL BE MADE; FINANCING TO BE STUDIED

The Alabama Automobile Trades Association has employed H. Eltinge Breed, of New York, a well known engineer, to make a general survey of highway conditions in this state. His work will be augmented by an investigation by a tax expert of a system of highway financing. Announcement of these plans is made by Hayes Tucker, president of the Association, it furnishes one of the most notable utterances on highway construction made in this state in many years.

If the pun will be pardoned, Alabama has reached a cross-road in her highway construction. On the one hand the Alabama highway commission estimates that $75,000,000 will be necessary to carry forward the work needed within the next few years. Many other prominent Alabamians assert an unwillingness to support a bond issue of that size, but are willing for some money to be voted.

An investigation by a disinterested expert then would seem most opportune at the present time.

The co-operation of the state highway commission has been pledged to the work, John A. Rogers, chairman of the commission, having written as follows:

"The more I think of your suggestion that an outstanding engineer of known ability come and inspect the highways built by the Alabama highway department the more it impresses me as being a good thing to do." The co-operation of the state tax commission also has been promised.

With the two agencies in Alabama willing to help the public to lend its co-operation in whatever manner desired, investigators in every way possible, it remains for the public to lend its co-operation in whatever manner desired. The Daily believes it can speak for the public and for all officials of the Tennessee Valley in pledging this co-operation.

The people of this state will want to know something about Mr. Breed. It is natural that they will desire this information and it is a gigantic task in their behalf that he has undertaken.

The Tuscaloosa News says of him:

Selection of Mr. Breed to make the highway survey was made only after a most thorough search for the most outstanding consulting highway engineer in the country. With no particular engineer in mind, the Alabama Automotive Trade Association requested conferences from leading authorities throughout the country and recommendations centered on Mr. Breed. Subsequent investigation pointed to him as the independent highway engineer best qualified to make an impartial, thorough fact-finding survey of the state's highway problems with recommendations of a forward-looking course of procedure. Strong letters of endorsement from such sources as the Bureau of Public Roads at Washington, the Transportation and Communication Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, the Bureau of Highways of the State of New York and the American Society of Civil Engineers further strengthened the Alabama Automotive Trades Association in its belief that in Mr. Breed they had found the outstanding recognized authority for whom they were seeking.

Mr. Breed's professional record shows an experience of thirty years' actual practice, embracing highway maine, harbor, river and general engineering practice, city work in paving and sewer construction, highway construction and planning, and laboratory work on testing of materials, planning and erection of stone crushing plants and estimating, bidding and supervision work for contractors.

From 1901 to 1911 Mr. Breed was with the New York State Highway Department in various civil service grades to the rank of assistant civil engineer having actual charge of construction, plans, estimates, designs and acting as supervising engineer for various sub-divisions of territory. One year afterward he served as assistant chief engineer in the construction of the famous Coleman Dupont road in Delaware, acting as chief engineer most of the time. The summer of 1912 he spent in studying roads and paving in France, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany and Scotland, and followed this with three years practice as consulting engineer, working on road projects throughout the country.

From 1915 to 1919 Mr. Breed was chief engineer of the New York State Highway Commission in charge of all construction work. His design and personal supervision of the construction of the world-famous Storm King Highway, over the difficult route from Albany to New York, brought him international recognition for achieving an outstanding engineering feat. Under his supervision construction work of all types was completed during the four years service. His work since then, conducted as an independent highway consulting engineer, has included services for states, municipalities, towns, counties and villages in planning highways and systems of highways and paving. He is universally recognized as one of the most impartial engineers in the country, favoring no particular type of road construction and holding the confidence of proponents of all types of highways.

Mr. Breed holds membership in the American Society of Civil Engineers, American Road Builders' Association, American Society for Testing Materials, American Society for Municipal Improvements, Permanent International Road Congress, and the Research Committee of the National Research Council. His other connections are as director of the Department of Highway Engineering at New York University, member of the Structural Design Committee of the Highway Research Bureau of the National Council, lecturer on highways and allied subjects at a number of universities and contributor of technical articles to various engineering publications. He was former chairman and a member of the special committee on standard construction contract of the American Society of Civil Engineers, represents the American Society for Municipal Improvements, on two committees of the American Society for Testing Materials and represents American Road Builders Association on the Highway Division of the National Research Council, as well as being a member of various other technical committees.

The three Changs, leading victorious invaders cannot control their soldiers or don't take the trouble.

PRAY that western Europe and both America's may know how to keep out Asiatic invasion. Several times Asia came close to conquering and possessing Europe, when her hordes came afoot and on slow ponies. What they might do with flying machines if they had able leaders, even one man of commanding genius such as Genghis Khan, would not make pleasant reading in future history.

THIS COUNTRY ought to have flying machine equipment for defense, but for some mysterious reason, appears unable to accomplish it.

Fortunately Europe possesses air fleets. They might help poor Uncle Sam, burdened with his load of gold, and his sound asleep statesmen, if the worst happens.

FRIDAY in many places was celebrated Shakespeare's 362nd birthday, and that should comfort those who believe that children not sent to college miss their chance in life. Shakespeare's genius would not have survived a modern college course. That fortunately doesn't matter, because in this scientific and industrial age, no Shakespeare could possibly be born.

Such an education as Bacon had in Shakespeare's day, or as Milton had a little later, would have destroyed Shakespeare. It might have made him great in some other way, but there would have been no Shakespeare.

It is impossible to create genius with education, very easy to stunt or destroy it with over education or unwise education.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY has failed miserably in all recent athletic contests, beaten in every event by Cambridge. Wise men decide that Oxford men, richer as a rule, use more automobiles and thus weaken their legs and lower their physical conditions.

Something like that was said one hundred thousand years ago, or earlier, when some Gro-Magnon tribe began riding around on tame buffaloes. The same will be said more emphatically 100 years hence when everybody flies for distances exceeding 50 miles. The people will then sigh for "good old automobile days when men got exercise."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, son of the original, shocks prohibitionists, by saying, "it is necessary to check murder, corruption and other evils that follow in the train of prohibition."

He wants the Volstead act repealed or modified, each state allowed to decide for itself what amount of alcohol is harmful.

But there will probably be no important change in the drinking law until after 1928. It may play a most important part in that campaign.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW, celebrating his 92nd birthday, says he hopes

De Valera was in America selling bonds of the Irish Republic" friends of Ireland bought them with little idea they would ever be paid. The Irish Free State, considering them a debt of honor of the Irish people, will begin paying them, in full, next April.

PAINS ALL OVER

Lady Says She Took Cardui and Never Saw Such Improvement—Was So Weak Couldn't Stand.

Weathersby, Miss.—Mrs. James M. Hall, of this place, writes that she was "getting weaker all the time" when Cardui, the woman's tonic, was first brought to her attention. After she had taken Cardui a while, she writes that she "never did see such an improvement."

"I suffered all the time and had pains all over," says Mrs. Hall. "I was so weak I could not stand. My skin was cold and flabby. I did not have any color. I had always been a very active woman—used to outdoor exercise, walking and going where I pleased, and to get down, not able to get myself a drink, was indeed a hardship."

"Nothing seemed to help me, till I began on Cardui. The first bottle seemed to strengthen me, and I sent for five more. By the time I had taken these, I was on my feet, going around, doing my work, gained in health and strength."

"I took two more bottles, and I am well and strong. Can work my garden. I haven't had any more sickness."

SPORTS

Senators Win, Yanks Idle, Browns Lose;
Giants Fall Before Phillies In 11th

Dutch Reuther, veteran twirler, won his third straight victory of the season yesterday, stopping the Red Sox with eight hits. Goslin and Blumgimely hitting provided enough bunches to give the Senators a victory. The Yanks whiled away a perfect winter's day yesterday when it was determined that the weather condition was a bar to the Athletic-Yank tilt. Detroit lost to Chicago 5-1. Cleveland maintained the league lead with a 2-1 victory over St. Louis. The Siskerites were unable to gather more than half a dozen hits off Shaute.

Mitchell won his own game against the Giants yesterday, savoring a rally in the 11th inning with a hit. Mitchell hurled a great game against the McGrawmen, allowing 9 safeties. The Pirates won another ball game, evening the count with the Cubs, 8-6. Specs Meadows gave out in the 7th inning and was taken from the box after a rapid fire battery of Chicago nitters had paced aboard the sacks. Rube Oldham took his place and stopped the rally. Errors by the Cards in the 9th and 10th innings were responsible for the Cinoy Reds pulling through with a 3-2 victory. Hits were all even, both getting 7.

Gink Hendrick, former Vandy star, is leading the Southern league in hitting with an average of .491. Hendrick replaces Tucker, New Orleans, team mate, who is hitting .481. Sammy West, Baron outfielder, is third with an average of .462, having secured 25 hits in 54 times at bat. West has proved the find of the year for the Dobbers. He was benched at the beginning of the year, but gradually has come forward with the stick.

Anti-Saloon Head Offers Literature To Speakers and Ministers on Prohi Issue

L. C. Branscomb, president of the Alabama Anti-Saloon league and J. B. Mills, state superintendent, today issued call to the public speakers and ministers of the state to call upon the state association for literature concerning the prohibition fight now being stirred over the nation. The following letter was sent to the newspapers in the state, supporting the "dry" cause:

In view of the tremendous onslaught that the wet politicians and papers are making against our prohibition laws we take the liberty of appealing to ministers of the gospel and all others who may appear on the platform as public speakers, who are believers in the Eighteenth Amendment, to let us opportunity pass to remind the public of the good already accomplished by prohibition. Especially do we urge the preachers and orators who are to participate in the various commencement occasions to have a word to say concerning law obedience and law enforcement. In a very short time our high school and college boys and girls will be at the head of affairs. Let us help to send them out with the right attitude towards one of the greatest enemies of the human race. Material for the preparation of such an address may be obtained by writing to the Alabama Anti-Saloon League, 806 Jackson Building, Birmingham, Ala.

J. B. Mills, Superintendent.

CARLOAD BEER TAKEN

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, April 27—A carload of beer 34,400 bottles was guarded in the railroad yards here early today. Six Chicagoans were arrested when they drove up to the cars presumably to haul the cargo away. The car was shipped from Canada in care of a lumber company.

Looking ahead

THE SOUTH'S NEED for greater railroad service in the next few years is a problem which the management of the Southern Railway System must solve now. Planning years ahead is a prime requisite of adequate railroad service.

The heavy freight movement throughout the South has naturally increased our total revenues. We have been able to effect many economies in operation which have correspondingly increased our net income and permitted us to pay dividends to our stockholders.

But traffic in the South will continue to grow. We must continue to expand our facilities in order that our service may keep pace with the demands upon it. Good earnings will make it possible to attract additional capital as needed to make necessary improvements.

The business interests of the South have a definite interest in the prosperity of their largest railway system. Continued good earnings by the Southern will insure the continuation of adequate transportation service to the South.
